Copyright

All (intellectual) property rights relating to the content of the E-Division website, including in any case the trademark rights, are exclusively based on e-division. E-Division expressly reserves these rights.

The (copyright) rights relating to the E-Division website and its contents (the data, images, texts and other information contained therein) are exclusively based on E-division. The content of referred websites and those of E-Division may only be used for personal use. Without the prior written consent of e-Division, it is not permitted, inter alia, to transmit, distribute or make available to third parties the contents of the E-Division website, or any part thereof.

If and insofar as the content of the website consists of contributions from users, the rights thereto rest with these users (unless the terms of use of these websites have been waived and/or these rights have been transferred to E-Division).

E-Division has the right, but not the obligation, to withhold access to information or to remove information if, in the sole judgement E-Division, there is (possible) infringement of rights of third parties.

E-Division also has the right to shorten and/or modify-unless otherwise agreed with the author-submitted material. This applies both text and footage.
